Money.org Re-launched successfully; site experience improved

ANA looks to begin building next generation site

Money.org, the American Numismatic Association's primary website, was successfully re-launched on Tuesday afternoon, July 24, with a new content-management system in place that is designed to make the website more stable, eliminate log-in errors and improve the end-user's experience in the members-only section.

"We experienced a few small bugs right after we launched, and we'll continue to work those out over the next couple of days," said ANA Executive Director Jeff Shevlin. "But overall, we feel like our members are getting a much better website that will have fewer problems and much more stability. Now, we'll turn our attention to building a brand-new Money.org."

Members can log-in immediately at www.money.org/login.aspx to read the August issue of The Numismatist, pay dues, update address information or change their passwords.

Members who have problems with the website are encouraged to email membersonly@money.org or call Member Services at 800-514-2646 to report issues.

The ANA plans to develop a new Money.org over the course of the next year. Members are invited to suggest features for a new website by emailing ideas to Jake Sherlock, ANA Communication Coordinator, at atjsherlock@money.org.

The American Numismatic Association is a congressionally chartered nonprofit educational organization dedicated to encouraging people to study and collect money and related items. The ANA helps its 25,500 members and the public discover and explore the world of money through its vast array of education and outreach programs, as well as its museum, library, publications, conventions and seminars.
