$100 Million in Rare Coins to Captivate the Public in Phoenix

Who says a penny isn't worth much these days? The public can see a legendary Lincoln cent valued at more than $1 million, along with more than $100 million of other historic rare coins and paper money, at the National Money Show® (NationalMoneyShow.com) in the Phoenix Convention Center, March 2-4. Visitors also can find out what their old coins and currency may be worth.

The convention, which is expected to draw thousands of collectors from across the country, will feature hundreds of dealers eager to buy, sell and appraise coins and currency; a pre-convention seminar on counterfeit detection; lectures and presentations from noted collecting professionals, an online auction by Classical Numismatic Group (CNG), incredible museum-quality exhibits and more.

“The National Money Show is a family-friendly, educational event sponsored by the nonprofit American Numismatic Association (money.org,” explained Dr. Ralph Ross, president of the 25,000-member organization based in Colorado Springs, Colorado. “Money is history you can hold in your hands, and you have the opportunity to see many numismatic national treasures in person at the show.”

Schedule

The convention, located in Hall F of the Phoenix Convention Center, is open 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Last entry is 30 minutes prior to closing. Registration is $10. Children 12 and under, as well as active duty and retired military personnel with valid ID (and up to three guests), are admitted free of charge. Entry is free for everyone on Saturday.

Amazing Exhibits

Coins valued in the millions – such as a $3 million nickel – and seldom-seen historical exhibits from the ANA's Money Museum and treasures from private collections are a huge draw for the public. Among the rarities on display:

- The first Arizona appearance of a mis-made World War II Lincoln cent that sold for more than $1 million. This penny still has the original mint red color 80 years after it left the Philadelphia Mint.
- One of the five known 1913-dated Liberty Head nickels. It is one of the world's most famous rare coins and is insured today for $3 million.
- Two-centuries-old medals honoring President George Washington.
- Rare examples of the United States dimes from 1796 and 1797.
- Fascinating "funny money," United States bills mistakenly printed with various errors, such as upside down or missing serial numbers.
- Historic World War II "Short Snorter" display, featuring banknotes autographed by U.S. Presidents Herbert Hoover, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Dwight D. Eisenhower.

On-Site Auction Viewing & Online Auction

Classical Numismatic Group, LLC (CNG), will conduct an official ANA auction of the 2023 National Money Show online starting Friday, March 3 at 8 am MST. Lots include a Mint State Wire Rim $20 St. Gaudens; a spectacular set of twelve Caesars in silver consigned by a customer in Scottsdale specifically for this auction; selections from the Gasvoda Collection of Byzantine Coinage; a group of Greek coinage and more.

Lot viewing is March 1, 12-5 p.m., March 2, 9-5 p.m. and March 3, 9-12 p.m. Lot pickup will take place March 4, 10-3 p.m.

Learning Opportunities

Money Talks lectures will be presented throughout the weekend by well-known professionals in the field of coin collecting. These lectures provide collectors a forum in which to share their views and research with the public and are free to attend. The 30- to 45-minute programs accommodate questions from the audience.

"The National Money Show will provide the public access to hundreds of dealers offering extensive numismatic inventory at all price levels, and educational programming for both beginning and seasoned hobbyists," explained American Numismatic Association Executive Director Kim Kiick.

"Many of the dealers will provide complimentary, informal evaluations of the public's old money."

Sponsors help make ANA conventions possible – providing the ANA with resources for better education, more activities, auctions and more. The following sponsors helped bring together this year's National Money Show.
